

Cornell, NTU offer post-grad programme

BRAND names in college education hardly come more prestigious than Cornell University and the Ivy League American university is out to set its mark not only in education, but also on the food and hotel industry in Singapore.

Its School of Hotel Administration — with the Nanyang Technological University's Nanyang Business School — is offering a joint post-graduate programme in hospitality management.

The Cornell-Nanyang Institute of Hospitality Management will start next June with 50 students each year. The year-long course is expected to cost about US$40,000 ($68,000).

This is the first time Cornell is offering such a degree outside its US campus. What better testimony to Singapore's growing status as a top educational hub?