

- The hospitality industry is regaining its attraction quotient again if the exciting developments happening right here in this island state of ours is any indication. The eminently respected and recognised Cornell University School of Hotel Administration will, in collaboration with Nanyang Technological University School of Business Administration, conduct a joint Masters of Management in Hospitality. This 12-month programme will enable students (50 to a class) to study on the Singapore campus as well as Cornell's campus in Ithaca, New York.